The reach of the table in X movement is 2000MM. For longitudinal machining (milling) of workpieces, these should not be wider than 1800MM. Calculated on an overtravel distance of e.g. a milling cutter of D160 Height operations up to 2000MM. At this height, you cannot use VHM drills or full milling depth because of vibrations. However, supports can be placed behind to support the product. The range of the Z axis depends on the tool used and the dimensions of the product to be machined. In X direction, a workpiece must be at least 520 mm wide to be able to machine it at O and 180 degrees with the tools currently available. At 90 and 270 degrees, the product must be 920MM to be machined with these tools. Otherwise, the "cabinet" will run against the table. Weight 20T must be clamped within a circle of 1M
